DESCRIPTION

Some gardening practices, even though started for good historical reasons, have become unbreakable rules. The author has always questioned the relevance of such rules. In this book he offers simpler, quicker and more successful ways to garden by demystifying and clarifying these and other misconceptions:

- Tree root growth follows the same pattern as trunk and branches
- Greenhouses need sterilising at the end of each growing season"
- Watering in sunlight damages leaves

Charles Dowding is a veteran organic grower and has written several books on vegetable growing. He contributes articles to many magazines, including Gardeners' World, Gardens Illustrated and Grow It! and gives regular talks and courses. He is an internationally recognised organic gardening expert and adviser. He has appeared on radio and television, including BBC Radio 4's The Long View and BBC TV's Gardeners' World.

Other Charles Dowding books published by Green Books: Organic Gardening: the natural, no-dig way, Salad Leaves for All Seasons, How to Grow Winter Vegetables.
